Year of the Air Force Family

Year of the Air Force
Family

Through July 2010, we will be celebrating the Year of the Air Force Family. This program, designated by the Secretary and Chief of Staff of the Air Force, focuses on our entire "family": active duty, Guard, and Reserve Airmen, civilians, spouses, children, unmarried members, extended family members, retirees, and community partners. This program is about helping people reach their goals, both personal and professional, while maintaining a wartime ops tempo. The Air Force is a great place to work, live, and play....our focus is to make it better!

National Military Month

Did you know that November is National Military Appreciation month? The first week of November, the 1st-7th marks Air Force Family Week. Much like the Year of the Air Force Family, this special week recognizes and celebrates our entire "family" of active duty, reserves, dependents, civilians and community partners who support us. Below you will find a schedule of events for November.

The Year of the Air Force Family is built around four pillars of excellence:

Health & Wellness: physical and psychological health, spiritual wellness, financial health, safety, recreation/leisure, and social networking/wellness

Airman & Family Support: single Airmen programs, deployment support, special needs, child care and youth programs

Education, Development & Employment: support and advocacy for children and spouses, personal and professional development for Airmen (includes civilians)

Airman & Family Housing: safe, affordable and available on and off-base housing for single Airmen and families, housing referral and relocation assistance

Look for the special Year of the Air Force Family logo promoting these programs as well as visit the official website at www.myairforcelife.com.
